This partnering effort brings a wide variety of stakeholders together to teach, learn and discuss with each other the critical importance of protecting the environment through multi-agency initiatives and the critical need for enforcement in environmental justice communities.

This year's symposium will be a series of five half-day workshops on the 3rd Wednesday of the month beginning in July. We continue our focus on environmental laws and practices to reduce pollution, increase protections and create a sense of well-being in contaminated disadvantaged communities. Once we set the exact time of the day for each workshop we will send out an update and a registration link; but for now please save the dates!
